The Report for the year ending March 31, 1920, contains notices of a Director, Henry Wilson Hodge, D.Eng., and fifty-five former students of the Seminary. Eight of these died in previous years but the fact of their death did not come to the attention of the Editor in time for an earlier Report.

Of the fifty-five former students, the oldest was the Rev. Elihu Loomis, of the class of 1850, who died at the age of ninety-four years and six months, and was the oldest living alumnus. Three others had passed their ninetieth year, twelve their eightieth, eleven their seventieth and sixteen their sixtieth. The youngest died at the age of thirty-two years. The average of the fifty-five was sixty-nine years and five months. The average confessional age was sixteen years and nine months.

The average age of the seventy-one was sixty-seven years, one month and twenty-four days. The average confessional age was sixteen years and eight months.

The Report for the year ending March 31, 1924, contains notices of fifty-five former students of the Seminary. Three of these died in previous years, but the fact of their death did not come to the attention of the Editor in time for an earlier Report.

Of the fifty-five one was Professor John DeWitt of the class of 1864. The oldest was the Rev. George W. Harlan, a graduate student, 1851-1852, who died at the age of ninety-seven years and ten months. One other had passed his ninetieth year, sixteen their eightieth year, and fourteen their seventieth year. The youngest died at the age of twenty-nine years and six months. The average age of the fifty-five was sixty-nine years and nine months. The average confessional age was sixteen years.

And that a Committee of Five be appointed by the President to arrange for the time, place, and programme of this meeting; that they shall send to every Princeton Seminary man notice of said meeting, with an urgent request to be present, and to be instant in prayer for God's guidance and favor, and for the furtherance of these ends that we all desire.

And that the expenses incident to the sending out of this call be met by this Association.

It was moved, seconded and carried that this be referred to the Executive Committee for consideration and with power to act if the way be found clear.

The meeting then adjourned with prayer by Rev. William K. McKinney, D.D., '00.
